

ADAMS NATIVE RETIRES FROM U. S. SERVICE

Miss Minnie A. Spangler Said To Have Handled Millions Of Dollars.

EMPLOYED IN PRINTING BUREAU

America's national debt pales almost into insignificance beside the amount of money Miss Minnie A. Spangler, a native of Adams county and now a resident of Gettysburg, helped to print in 30 years' service with the bureau of printing and engraving in Washington, D. C.

Miss Spangler, who retired on pension, January 31, recently returned to Gettysburg and is now making her home with Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Spangler, York street.

Asked how much money she handled and helped to print during the score and a half years she worked in Washington, Miss Spangler replied that she had no idea, but indicated that it was much more than the present national debt of approximately $28,000,000,000.

Helped Print Money

In her long term of service with the bureau of printing and engraving, begun under President Roosevelt I and ended under President Roosevelt II, Miss Spangler helped print money of every denomination, from the lowly $1 bill to the mighty $10,000 bill, the largest issued by the government.

For 27 years of her service in Washington, Miss Spangler was an examiner of paper money, scrutinizing the bills as they came from the presses for various imperfections which creep into the process. During the first three years of her employment, she actually helped to print the currency, assisting a printer to feed the presses. Her official designation on the bureau's payroll as "clerical mechanic."

"Faithful Service"
When Miss Spangler retired from service, she was presented with a certificate of "faithful service" by Alvin Hall, of Philadelphia, the present director of the bureau of printing and engraving.

When Miss Spangler began her position with the bureau, there were about 4,000 employees in the money-printing department, most of the work then being done by hand. In the 30 years she served the bureau, the number grew approximately 1,500. Now, however, most of the work of printing money is done on automatic feeder presses.

Miss Spangler recalled that Edward McPherson, father of Judge Donald P. McPherson, Carlisle street, was one-time director of the bureau of printing and engraving, and is credited with having the government print its own money instead of having the work done by private concerns.

Miss Spangler is a daughter of the late John H. and Susan M. (Hoffman) Spangler, and was born near St. Luke's church, between Bonaventure and Littlestown. Her mother wanted her to become a teacher and Miss Spangler went so far as to take an examination for a school in Adams county, but when she learned that she had to make the fire in the morning in a one-room school house in the South Mountains, the teaching profession lost a prospect.

Joins Civil Service

Instead of teaching, after graduating from Gettysburg high school with the first graduating class, Miss Spangler learned to be a seamstress and followed that work until 1904, when a civil service examination for positions in the bureau of printing and engraving was announced.

Together with the Misses Bertha and Carrie Sherry, of Gettysburg, Miss Spangler took the examination for the federal position. They were the only three applicants, and all of them passed with "flying colors," beginning their duties in Washington in January, 1905.

While Miss Spangler remained in the bureau of printing and engraving, the Misses Sherry later went to other departments, Miss Bertha Sherry to the treasury department, and Miss Carrie Sherry to the department of agriculture. The Misses Sherry will be eligible for retirement within a few years.

"The Tavern" Will Reopen March 1 as "Lee-Meade Inn"

Joseph H. Chamberlain today announced that "The Tavern" will reopen for the 1935 season on March 1 as the "Lee-Meade Inn."

The Tavern, located on the Emmitsburg road was first opened July 1, 1930, the 67th anniversary of the first day's battle of Gettysburg. Since that time it has been opened throughout the spring, summer and fall months, closing each December for the winter months. The opening this year has been advanced by at least a month.

In announcing the change in name Mr. Chamberlain explained that the old name "The Tavern" was not in harmony with the policy of the hotel in that the name was misleading to the extent that the word "tavern" invariably meant a place where alcoholic beverages were sold.

Mr. Chamberlain said that he does not approve of repeal and that he does not dispense alcoholic beverages at his place. In view of this fact,

PASTOR RAPS PLEASURES AS BEING MENACE

Dissipation and Non-Observance of Sabbath Cited by Rev. Dr. Thomas.

TEXT SELECTED FROM II TIMOTHY

Six points were outlined by the Rev. Dr. N. B. S. Thomas, pastor of the Memorial United Brethren church, in his sermon Sunday evening attacking the over-doing of pleasure-seekers today.

"The Pleasure Problem," was the subject of the sermon and the text was taken from II Timothy 3:1-4: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. . . For men shall be lovers of pleasure, more than lovers of God."

"Some regard all forms of amusement and pleasure indiscriminately as right and good. Others regard all pleasure as wrong. Some people place great question marks about certain well known forms of amusements. Others have no question whatever concerning them."

"What we need is a view of this side of life which shall be free from all fanaticism on the one hand and all rank worldliness on the other. However, we may differ. All work and no play makes a very dull disciple. But the peril today is that men love pleasure more than they love God."

Dissipation Harmful
"Many of our amusements are positively hurtful to body, mind and soul. Cards are in bad repute. There is such a pleasure or fascination about them for many people that they cease to be means of recreation and quickly merge into dissipation."

Continuing the pastor said: "What do we find of an objectionable character in our modern dance? The liberties accorded in the dance of today are such as to arouse the lower passions. I do not say that all who dance are impure, but I do say that three-fourths of the abandoned women of our large cities were ruined in the dance."

"What shall I say about the theatre? It is true that all theatres were in the reign of Charles the Second. But today some are as bad as the worst even then. Love affairs are made elopements, home life made to appear tame. Goodness is placed at a discount. Hence its moral effect on the community is not good and a great deal of (Continued on Page Two)

Here and There News and Comment by THE EDITOR

THESE are days when the growing group of enthusiastic home gardeners in Gettysburg and Adams county are beginning to plan for spring activities. Each year in Gettysburg there is an increasing number of dwellers who are adding to their work in this respect, with the result that the landscape in the community is yearly becoming more attractive to home folk and the multitude of visitors alike.

Spring is actually only a few weeks away, and it is not too soon to begin getting ready to set out the bulbs and blooms.

In that connection, a series of articles by Miss Gisela Grimm, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Karl Grimm, of the Gettysburg college faculty, who is gaining a national prominence as an authority on landscape gardening and flower culture, which have been appearing regularly in the New York Herald-Tribune, are especially interesting to local home-gardening enthusiasts.

In the Herald-Tribune of February 24, Miss Grimm gives an excellent outline of three methods of propagating pinks (Dianthus) which she describes as excellent perennials for the border and rock garden.

The majority of them are easily grown, thriving and flowering freely under the amateur's care, she says. An open, sunny place, and a light gritty yet nourishing soil are ideal. Pinks dislike a wet soil where the ice may form in winter and kill them. Most pinks have a preference for lime and are intolerant of an acid soil.

The article is extremely interesting and helpful for any contemplating the growing of pinks and a copy of it can be obtained by ordering the newspaper in which it appeared direct from the publishing company.

FREQUENT display of the fine brand of hospitality and courtesy developed in recent years among the faculty of Gettysburg college toward distinguished visitors has brought forth many expressions of appreciation in various ways to reflect the utmost credit upon the institution and the community alike.

A couple weeks ago, Drexel Institute, an institution of high standing in Philadelphia, sent its basketball team to Gettysburg for a game with the Gettysburg college quintet. The team was accompanied by its distinguished president, Dr. Park R. Kolbe. Members of the college faculty, including President and Mrs. Hanson, Dr. C. E. Bilheimer, athletic director; Dr. Thomas L. Cline, head of the English department; Head Coach Henry T. Bream and others, immediately set about to make the few hours before the game interesting and pleasant for the guests, and the manner in which they succeeded is reflected in this hearty letter which Dr. Kolbe mailed to a member of the faculty upon his return home:

"What a valuable thing first impressions are! I had never seen Gettysburg college before last Saturday night, nor had I known many of its faculty. In spite of the painful athletic result, I am convinced that you have one of the finest institutions in the country and I know that your hospitality is unsurpassed! Thanks again for what you all did for us. Both my associates and I came home with a warm feeling for Gettysburg."

CONTINUED evidence of universal opposition to the "pink slip" plan of the federal government, which would make public the incomes of all taxpayers, appears in newspapers throughout the country. The Detroit News has a striking illustration of the danger and annoyance to taxpayers (Continued on Page Two)

Pastor Raps

America's vice and crime come from the theatre.

The misuse of wealth, the display of wealth through parties, receptions and balls creating unrest and jealousy, and the non-observance of the Sabbath were criticized by the Rev. Dr. Thomas.

In conclusion he said: "Sunday is coming to be regarded as a holiday instead of a holy day. When King Edward went to a Sunday concert the next Sunday Dr. Parker in his London pulpit denounced it. This is equally true of the American Sunday when we are advocating an open Sunday in state and nation. God save us from it."

"When doctors disagree as to this question of pleasure, who shall decide? I answer the individual conscience inspired by the example of Jesus. In all the functions he attended he did not do so to eat, drink and dance but for the opportunity of teaching and influencing men in the things of God and holiness and the like."

Kidnap Plot Was Mere Conversation

Bethlehem, Feb. 25 (AP).—The reported plot to kidnap President Grace and hold him for ransom was reported to be a mere "conversation" today.

The proposal was made in an under-world conversation "six or eight months ago" and was "rejected a few hours later," an official high in investigation of the "plot" disclosed. The scheme never assumed the proportions of a "plot" going no further than the conversation itself the official said.

The conversation is alleged to have been divulged in a statement by Louis Katura, of Hellertown, one of four men under arrest in connection with two bank robberies, the official said.

HANOVER YOUTH FATALLY SHOT

David Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Murphy, 132 York street, Hanover, was fatally wounded in the abdomen by a bullet from a .22 rifle Saturday afternoon at about 1:30 o'clock while he and two friends were playing at the Murphy summer home in the Pigeon Hills. The youth was rushed to the Hanover general hospital. He died Saturday night.

Young Murphy, a student at Hanover senior high school, had gone to the hills with Harry Hesson, 421 North Franklin street, and Robert Erb, 200 High street, according to information given police who investigated. They were playing with the rifle when the weapon in Hesson's hands, was discharged, the bullet striking Murphy, the police said they were informed.

Young Murphy was a popular student in the Eichelberger senior high school and was a member of the basketball squad.

SENATE PASSES HAINES' MEASURE

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP).—A resolution, introduced by Congressman Harry L. Haines, of Red Lion, representing the Adams-York-Franklin counties' district, calling for the creation of a commission to study the proposed construction of a Washington-Lincoln memorial boulevard linking the Lincoln memorial in Washington and the Lincoln memorial in Gettysburg, was passed by the senate this afternoon and sent to the house.

The commission is directed to prepare plans for the proposed highway and to report to congress within one year.

KILLER AGAIN ELUDES ARREST

Raymond Hamilton Escapes Ambush, Kidnaps Three Boys and Flees West.

McKinney, Texas, Feb. 25 (AP).—Raymond Hamilton, elusive desperado who narrowly escaped death in a police ambush near here last night, was reported fleeing west today with three abducted farm boys after spending part of the night at a farm house three miles west of Celina.

Hamilton's companion in Sunday's gun fight and still with him today, was not definitely identified. Hamilton was reported wounded in the jaw from the barrage laid down by ambushing officers Sunday.

Search for the killer, who fled the Texas prison death-house last summer and a month ago escaped from another trap in Dallas, was unavailing. This morning officers learned that after abandoning the bullet-riddled car near Weston, Hamilton and his companion held up J. C. Loftice, 16, and driven in his roadster to the farm of Bill Mayes.

At dawn they left, taking with them Buster Mayes, son of the farmer, J. C. Harlow and Loftice.

Youth Dies After Sledding Accident

York, Pa., Feb. 25.—With a nine-inch fracture of the skull, which he sustained in a coasting accident, Earl Ehrhart, 15, walked nearly three miles to his home, near Glenrock, Sunday before the injury made him ill. He died in a hospital several hours later.

The Ehrhart boy and a companion, Francis Bailey, were coasting down a sharp incline when they lost control of the sled, which struck a telephone pole. Feeling apparently no ill effects from the terrific impact, young Ehrhart got up and walked to his home.

Hanover Selects Athletic Director

Ray W. Gray, Portage, who had 12 years of experience as coach of football, basketball, baseball and track, was elected by the Hanover board of education to the position of director of athletics and instructor in the Hanover public schools.

Gray, who has made an exceptional record at Portage, will succeed William C. Bowser, who resigned as director of athletics recently after serving for ten years in Hanover. The new director will receive $2,200 for a 10-month term. Bowser's salary is $2,150 for a nine-months period, having been reduced to that figure from $2,400 when a general ten per cent cut was made in all salaries in the district two years ago.

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—Fickle financial markets flirted with both the bulls and the bears today with the latter apparently receiving the most attention.

Consolidated Gas, American Water Works, North American and American Telephone advanced fractionally. Eastman Kodak got up a point and Loew's firmed.

Chester S. Good, of Chambersburg, was arrested, Sunday evening, for driving an over-loaded truck. The machine was 3,040 pounds over-weight, according to the state highway patrolman who laid the information before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer.

BOMB WRECKS 11-CAR TRAIN

Blast Blows Up Tank Car of Gasoline and Flames Spread Over Train.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25 (AP).—A dynamite bomb blasted a tank car loaded with gasoline from the tracks of the Chicago and Illinois Midland railroad Sunday and turned it into a volcano of flame that spurted over eleven other cars of the loaded freight train, destroying them. No one was hurt.

Officials took it as an answer to the federal and state round-up of suspected bombers of coal trains and the $200,000 civil suit, started last week, accusing members of the Progressive Miners' Union of the reign of violence.

One Of 33 Is Coal Car
There was one coal car on the mixed freight of thirty-three cars that was wrecked by the dynamiters at Andrew Station, eight miles north of Springfield. A Peabody Coal company mine employing United Mine Workers is at Andrew. The dynamite explosion, set in the middle of the track, could not have been better timed for destructive purposes. It burst under the one gasoline car of the train and the spreading flames prevented any attempt to save the box cars and the one coal carrier.

The right of way was burned for a quarter mile and traffic was blocked. The fire was still stubbornly eating through wreckage twelve hours after the explosion.

Fire fighters, railroad crews dispatched to the scene on switch engines, had to confine their efforts to saving a small packing plant near where the blazing cars stopped.

Investigators, assuming this to be another attack in the long wars between the United Mine Workers of America and the Progressive Miners, found no clue to the bombers. They were unable even to tell whether the blast was set off by an electric switch or by an automatic fuse.

SUICIDE GIRLS WERE "UN SOUND"

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict of "Suicide While of Unsound Mind."

Romford, Eng., Feb. 25 (AP).—Elizabeth and Jane Du Bois who plunged from an airplane to death last week, visualized their suicides as a "pretty straight" corridor to the dead men they loved.

A coroner's jury today returned a joint verdict of "suicide while of unsound minds" after it had heard the contents of two letters which the girls had intended only for their father Coert Du Bois, United States consul general in Naples, and their mother.

The father, tight-lipped and white-knuckled, attended the inquest. The mother stayed alone at a hotel, still unaware of the complete details of her daughters' plunge from a commercial transport ship.

In their letters, the two beautiful American girls, told of their grief for the death of Flying Officer John A. C. Forbes and Flight Lieutenant Henry L. Beatty, who were killed at Messina, Sicily, two weeks ago, when their royal air force flying boat crashed into a hillside.

One of the notes said that Flying Officer Forbes, engaged to another girl, was going to break off his engagement in order to marry Jane.

GRACE IS GIVEN MILLIONS BONUS

Head of Bethlehem Steel and Ship Building Companies Got Salary, Too.

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP).—Bonuses paid to Eugene G. Grace as president of the Bethlehem ship building company and Bethlehem steel corporation, were disclosed today before the senate munitions committee to have amounted to $12,282,000 from 1917 to 1931, in addition to a salary of $12,000 per year for most of the period.

Just previously he expressed opposition to elimination of all profit in the event of a war involving the United States.

The bonus testimony was in connection with committee questioning whether Grace would approve having his plant commandeered by the government in time of war and his own salary cut to that of a general, "about $10,000 a year."

"I can't conceive of the government taking over an institution and telling the man at the head to go on and run it," he replied. "That is not the government."

ROBBER SHOTS DOG AND FLEES

Burglar, Trapped in Harrisburg Home by Dog, Fires And Then Escapes.

Harrisburg, Feb. 25.—A police dog became a hero Saturday night when he was shot by a burglar as he probably saved his master from being the victim of a desperado's bullet.

Despite the dog's valiant efforts, the burglar leaped from a second-floor window and escaped.

Upon their return home Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McIntyre, found the front door of their home ajar. Entering first, McIntyre heard a noise coming from the second floor and started up the stairway to investigate. McIntyre's wife also heard the noise, which she believed was being made by a burglar.

"Go get him," Mrs. McIntyre said to the dog.

Shot Rings Out
The dog dashed by McIntyre, who was ascending the stairway, and ran into the front room on the second floor of the house, where he is believed to have cornered the desperado.

A shot rang out, and the dog, shot in the shoulder, came down stairs in answer to his mistress' call. McIntyre notified the city police who arrived in a cruiser auto.

"He's in the house," somebody shouted to the police.

Two policemen entered the home, their revolvers drawn. They found that the burglar had apparently climbed through a second-story window and had dropped to the back yard.

Must Remain Nameless

Dr. H. F. Broude, veterinarian, removed a bullet from the abdomen of the dog, which is expected to recover.

"Don't put the name of our dog in the newspaper," McIntyre said. "He'll make up with anybody who calls him by name."

The intruder had ransacked the front room of the second floor. A toy bank containing a small amount of money had been removed from a top shelf in the closet, and had been placed on a dresser. The burglar is believed to have been frightened away without obtaining any loot.

McIntyre told police that he caught a glimpse of the burglar who resembles a man sought for entering a number of homes in this city during the past several days.

FIND LEGS OF MURDERED MAN

Scotland Yard Faces Another Mysterious Crime; One Remains Unsolved.

London, Feb. 25 (AP).—Two legs severed from a man's body were discovered today stuffed under a seat of a train arriving in Waterloo station.

Railroad police called Scotland Yard.

The criminal investigation division operators announced within a few moments that the legs undoubtedly had belonged to a man.

A coach cleaner, inspecting the third class compartment of a train which arrived from suburban Hounslow found the legs wrapped in newspaper covered with brown paper and tied with a string.

It was recalled that the woman's torso in Brighton's "trunk crime No. 1" was wrapped similarly. The Brighton crime, which occurred last summer, was closed officially last week, when a coroner's jury returned an "open verdict" after Scotland Yard and criminologists were unable even to determine the identity of the murdered woman.

Physicians, examining the legs found today, estimated that the latest victim had been dead apparently only about 12 hours.

LOCAL MAN ARRESTED

J. J. "Bumie" Miller, Hanover street, was arrested Saturday evening by Officers C. W. Culp and C. M. Spence on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Miller was committed to the Adams county jail to await arraignment before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer.

IN NEW POST

Allan B. Coddington assumed his duties in Harrisburg this morning, having been transferred from the Biglerville plant of the Hershey creamery company to the one in Harrisburg. The family will remain in Biglerville until late spring or early summer.

MONARCHY IN BERLIN FADES

Hitler Declares Old Regime Can Never Return to Power in Germany.

Munich, Germany, Feb. 25 (AP).—The heavy hand and shouting voice of Chancellor Adolf Hitler sought to banish forever Sunday all thought of the return of a monarch to the German Reich.

"To fools who still dream of a restored regime," Hitler shouted, "I say that what once was can never be again. You will never return to power."

The huge Munich town hall echoed and reechoed with cheers from an assembly of seasoned old Nazi campaigners and eager young aspirants to Nazi honors gathered to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the day Hitler proclaimed the Nazi gospel in a Munich beer cellar.

Refers to Foreign Relations
"We are all for peace," said Hitler in his speech, touching only briefly on foreign relations, "but not at the price of our honor. We are ready for any kind of cooperation, but if the world does not understand we are ready at all times to stand on our own feet."

Mainly his address was a series of recollections of the struggles of national socialism and a justification of Nazi "hard-fistedness" as necessary in view of what he called the corruption of the regime that preceded.

Faith Was Sole Inspiration

"Unshakable faith in the German people," Hitler loudly proclaimed, "was my sole inspiration and sustenance at a time when the country languished in deepest humiliation, when materialism triumphed and when Mammon ruled."

"When five Germans were together there were five parties. But I knew another, a better Germany, invisible then to most other people."

"We were dishonored for 13 years through false leadership," said the Reichsfuhrer, returning once more to the theme of monarchical rule, "but such a Germany shall never come back. The German nation is determined to defend its liberty to the last. Neither I nor anyone after me will sign anything derogatory to our honor. What we sign we will keep."

payers involved in the plan. Captioned as "Income Tax Publicity," it is in the form of a cartoon. Uncle Sam is behind the counter in the offices of the internal revenue department. In front of the counter is a line of desperate looking characters and "down-and-outers." They are asking in chorus, "How much is Joe Spivis' in come?" First in line is the burglar, then a salesman with a scheme, then an unlucky relative, then a "hard-boiled" chap whose fender was bent by Joe Spivis, then the chap who wants a promissory note indorsed, and so on. It is to be earnestly hoped that as a matter of common decency and safety, the taxpayer will be allowed a certain degree of privacy and that congress will rescind its plan to tell to the world the private incomes of its taxpaying citizens. It was tried before and failed miserably.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY LEADERS IN

Adams county, in common with those of every other county in the state, are having their hands full these days trying to keep pacified the faithful who helped deliver the vote in the last general election and who want to feed at the state pork barrel. And they are legion.

Party leaders here, as elsewhere, are powerless. It would appear that Governor Earle, who has the last word in the distribution of patronage and who intends to exercise his prerogative in that respect, has a well-defined plan in his mind on the handling of jobs. Of course, the recommendations of recognized party leaders here as elsewhere will be largely followed by the governor. But not until he is ready. And in the meantime, those wanting jobs will have to be patient. There is little or nothing local party leaders can do to hurry things along. Right now, the governor seems to have his hands full with legislative problems.

POSTMASTER General James

A Farley is still a powerful figure in national politics despite efforts of his political enemies to discredit him. And he is certain to prove a magnet for democratic party leaders from nearby counties when he comes to York March 2 to address the Jackson-Jefferson dinner at Frank W. Trout's popular Hotel Yorktowne. He was obtained as a speaker for the occasion by Congressman Haines.

Montana Rides Again

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: Brother Pascual and the Montana Kid have deliberately walked into the grisly Valley of the Dead, hoping to rescue Mateo Rubric, condemned to work himself to death in the valley. The terrible Juan-Silva, master of the valley, has devised a test to prove that Montana really is the Kid. He has had him locked in a dark room with three huge peons. All are armed with machetes. Montana, to live, must kill the other three. He has worked himself out a ledge, and is removing his only garment, a pair of cotton shorts.

MONTANA'S RUSE

Removing the shorts required minutes and minutes—and endless time—heaving himself up on one elbow and his knees, working the cloth down towards the ankles sharpening his ears so that not a sound could be heard without first coming to his own senses.

But at last he had the cloth in his hand.

He lay on his left shoulder in his left hand holding the cloth to the extent of that arm. In his right hand he kept the machete. And then he waited, with eyes closed.

His left arm began to grow numb. If that happened, his plan was lost, for it depended on delicacy of touch. No stir of wind would move that hanging cloth. It was to Montana as the main spy-thread on which the spider keeps her foot for news of anything that touches her web.

Feeling was fast leaving his left arm. He kept flexing his left hand from time to time. And his eyes were closed. To attempt to see in utter night would only make him strike astray when the time came.

The cloth pulled slightly in his hand. He hesitated, perhaps for the thousandth part of a second, and then struck with all his might. A dropping weight almost pulled the knife from his hand, but he wrenched it free.

"Diablo!" a man had gasped.

He reached far out and struck at the sound. The machete shore through flesh.

And a man screamed, short and sharp.

"Vidal—Garcias! he has seen in the dark! Vidal!"

"Vidal!" said another voice. Then "Vidal is gone—it was he that dropped—"

"My God, I am killed, Garcias!"

"Hush! Fool—fool—the noise—"

But already, under cover of those voices, Montana was down from the shelf.

He stepped softly away from the voices. He lay on the floor, stretched out flat, the machete gripped in his right hand over his head.

The cool of the floor turned instantly hot with his body. He was sweating all over, and the air was thicker and staler than ever.

He had a frenzied second of thinking that it would be death by suffocation merely to remain in the room.

Then he took hold of himself and cast the panic away.

Then he had struck through the skull—that Vidal—he was dead; and another was badly wounded—Leon that would be. There remained Garcias. Well, it was for Garcias that he lay stretched along the floor.

His mind stretched back to old Juan-Silva. Perhaps it would be better to die here, mangled with the strokes and the savage thrusts of a machete, than to go out to face that terrible old man again. All that he could think of was the stiff, hard folds of the dried skin, and the voice like the sound of a death rattle.

A wild yell beat through the room; the echoes of it crowded back from the walls.

"I am dying! I die! Mercy in the name of God! Mercy in the name of God—!"

Hands began to beat on the wall. "Give me light to die by! Give me one ray of light—light—light!"

The voice went up into a wordless screaming. It changed to a gasping, a choking sob.

Would they open the door when they heard the beating of those hands?

But Montana lay still and made every nerve in his body alert, for perhaps, under cover of the dying men's noise, that Garcias was stepping swiftly here and there through the darkness, searching. He was the hugest of the three, the most perfect animal.

Something cold touched the knee of the Kid. He struck with the full weight of his arm, three feet above the floor.

"Dios!" gasped an indrawn voice.

A blow fell; steel shattered on the stone floor inches from the head of the Kid. The sparks leaped, died, showed him nothing. He had torn his blade free and struck again, swinging sideways. He found nothing.

Something fell heavily on the floor.

He stood on tiptoe, the machete poised.

He stood for terrible seconds, waiting; and then he heard a queer groan.

That was all.

Behind him, Leon was silent at last.

He went to the wall and fumbled his way gradually around it. When at last, he reached the inside of the door, he beat three great strokes on it with the butt of his machete.

The door quivered, opened a little.

A blasting ray of light struck through and almost blinded him.

"Who is it? Leon? Vidal?" called the voice of the gray-headed captain.

"El Keed," said Montana.

They jerked the door wide open.

The sight of him seemed to shock them like a blow. He looked down and saw that he was naked.

"Here," he said to the captain, offering the weapon. "I'm finished with it."

The "good" treatment of the friar, when Juan-Silva had commended him to the keeping of his guards, consisted of taking him to a long, low shed, where he was promptly stripped of his robe and clad in the universal garb of the valley.

The chain was fitted to his ankles, the length of it running up to a steel collar that inclosed his neck, and as the blacksmith riveted it a bigger neck was never fitted. Maybe the singing of psalms and chants had swelled it, brother, but a few days in the Valley of the Dead will make it shrink again."

Then they took him into the fields. With the wide straw sombrero to cover his head he was placed in a line of laborers.

Absently he worked, swaying the wide-bladed hoe, and forging ahead so far beyond the others that they began to curse him, because the overseers, shouting, began to drive the rest to keep them up with this tremendous pace-maker.

When the poor friar understood that he was the cause of this torment, he slowed his work. He became so conscientious in his efforts to stay in line that he actually dropped several times behind it and received as a reward several strokes of the long-lashed whip.

The last of them, given with a certain drawing motion, cut his skin like a knife, and he felt the warm running of his blood as soon as the numbness of pain left his flesh.

He was not angered. It always seemed to Brother Pascual that the more pain we endure on earth, the nearer we have climbed to heaven. It was a doctrine which he would not preach to the simple mountaineers among whom he worked, because he felt that, after all, they have pain enough and need not be tormented by strange doctrines.

So he worked patiently through the day, with such a gentle and uncomplaining manner, that even the foul-faced criminals on either side of him began to look on him almost with kindness.

He was marched with the rest towards the sleep-house, at the close of the day. They were all taken through a certain ceremony.

In the first place—since uncleanness may breed disease—they were driven like sheep through a river pool which soured them to the neck. After that they filed by a pile of tin cups, and past a big caldron filled with a sort of bean soup, thick, sour to the nose, unspeakable to the palate, and on top of the cup of beans was dropped a lump of black bread.

This small ration than had only a short time to eat, because the guards grew restless and wished to have the end of the day come at once. Accordingly, the whips began to snap before the last mouthful was down, and then the doors of the sleep-house were opened.

Strange things happened then. For Brother Pascual saw men bolt out of the line and scream that they would die then and there sooner than spend one more night in the hell-house.

One ardent example put an end to this nonsense.

GETTING TO BE A HABIT

WINGS SPLIT WITH WILLIGS

Locals Register 27-23 Victory After Bowing to Pittsburgh Five, 37-35.

Jake Dracha's brilliant playing enabled the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings to easily defeat the Pittsburgh Willigs, at Hagerstown, 27-23, before a large crowd after the westerners had defeated the Wings in a nip and tuck affair at Hanover, 37-35, over the week-end.

Excepting for the first quarter in which they trailed 6-3, the Wings were out in front the whole way. After the first period the stout Wing defense did not allow a Willig field goal until late in the third period. At half time the score was 15-7.

Early in the fourth frame the locals held a 22-8 lead but suddenly the Willigs commenced to snap out of their lethargic play and pulled the score to dangerous quarters but Dracha bagged a goal to sew up the tilt.

Dracha looped half the Wings' goals with five double-deckers. He also converted a charity toss.

In the game at Hanover the Wings led throughout the first half but succumbed to a fast last half rally by the invaders. At half time Gettysburg led 18-16.

By splitting this pair of games the Wings have now established a record of thirty-one victories and nine defeats for the season. It also gave them an even break in four games with the Willigs this year, each team having won two.

GETTING TO BE A HABIT

Lafayette, Ind. (AP)—In defeating Ohio State, 42-41, Purdue raised its string of basketball victories over the Buckeyes to 18. In 23 games played between the two schools since 1918, Ohio State has won but five.

WINGS SPLIT WITH WILLIGS

Locals Register 27-23 Victory After Bowing to Pittsburgh Five, 37-35.

Jake Dracha's brilliant playing enabled the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings to easily defeat the Pittsburgh Willigs, at Hagerstown, 27-23, before a large crowd after the westerners had defeated the Wings in a nip and tuck affair at Hanover, 37-35, over the week-end.

Excepting for the first quarter in which they trailed 6-3, the Wings were out in front the whole way. After the first period the stout Wing defense did not allow a Willig field goal until late in the third period. At half time the score was 15-7.

Early in the fourth frame the locals held a 22-8 lead but suddenly the Willigs commenced to snap out of their lethargic play and pulled the score to dangerous quarters but Dracha bagged a goal to sew up the tilt.

Dracha looped half the Wings' goals with five double-deckers. He also converted a charity toss.

In the game at Hanover the Wings led throughout the first half but succumbed to a fast last half rally by the invaders. At half time Gettysburg led 18-16.

By splitting this pair of games the Wings have now established a record of thirty-one victories and nine defeats for the season. It also gave them an even break in four games with the Willigs this year, each team having won two.

Roaring down the home stretch to what they hope will be their fourth consecutive Eastern Pennsylvania collegiate basketball league pennant the Men-of-Bream smothered the Albright dribblers, at Reading, Saturday night, to the tune of 54 to 32.

Never once in danger but taking no chances and gleefully pounding away at the Albright line of defense the Orange and Blue Bullets blasted through to an overwhelming victory before a capacity house.

At the opening whistle the Bullets stepped into the lead, Kozma counting with two charity tosses and Morris registering one. Then the count went to 8-2 for the Bullets, 8-5 and then away they went counting from all angles of the court, upsetting Albright rallies and scampering around the small Reading court to make their plays impregnable against the Albright defense.

It was another Bullet night and the Gettysburgians were in fine fettle for the fray. Albright was plucky but could not cope with the fast moving and alert Bullets.

Cico Is Star
Johnny Cico, Steelton wheel-horse, was the individual star of the game. The famed gum-chewing Bullet star not only counted 12 points through the hoops but played a bang-up defensive game, out-smarting Albright's passers on many occasions to nip prospective rallies.

Following closely on the heels of Cico was Jack Fish, sophomore forward, who again offered a plucky battle, registering ten points and playing well to the fore in the Bullet defensive work.

While the Bullets were winning Muhlenberg continued to retain a narrow grasp on the league by defeating Ursinus, at Allentown, 49 to 34.

This gives the Mules a 11 point advantage over the Bullets because of their having played one more game than the Gettysburgians.

Wednesday night the Bullets go to Carlisle for the Dickinson clash. On March 1, Ursinus comes here; on March 6, Albright comes here; and on March 8, Franklin Marshall closes the league schedule with their return clash with the Bullets in the Eddie Plank gymnasium.

New Holland and Wings Meet Tonight

Tonight the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings will meet a stiff opponent in the New Holland cagers, reputed to be one of the strongest teams in the Central Pennsylvania league. The game will be played on the hotel court annex.

Johnny Schrey and Slim Lyons are the two visiting players the Wings will have to watch tonight. Both boys are great shots and exceptional floor men.

A thrilling preliminary game is promised when the Sweetland, county champs, meets the McSherrytown team of the York-Adams cage league. McSherrytown halted the Sweets several weeks ago at McSherrytown to hand them their first defeat of the season and the locals are out for revenge.

Stoyestown was formerly coached by Elmore H. Slaybaugh, Fairfield pilot.

The Waynesboro "Y" girls, with Billow starring, eked out a 15-8 decision over the Fairfield girls. At half time Waynesboro led 9-4. Slonaker looped a pair of goals to lead the Fairfield attack.

Tuesday evening the Fairfield independents' first and second teams will entertain McSherrytown at Fairfield.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

A striking evidence of the advantage of the School System is now exhibited in our Borough. It had been supposed that all the children were receiving education previously; but it appears that there are upwards of one hundred children more than were in the schools previously to the adoption of the system. The same effect has resulted wherever it has been adopted.
This fact speaks volumes.

And it came to pass, that after three days Paul called the chief of the Jews together; and when they were come together, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people, or customs of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans:

Whom, when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me.
But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar, not that I had sought to accuse my nation of.

For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you, and to speak with you; because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

And they said unto him, We never received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came shewed or spake any harm of thee.

But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest, for as concerning this act, we know that every where it is spoken against.

And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening.

And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not.

And when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet unto our fathers,

Saying, Go unto this people,
and say, Hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive:

For the heart of this people is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

Be it known therefore unto you, that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it.

And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, and had great reasoning among themselves.

And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him.

Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.—Acts 28:17-31.

Pennsylvania college celebrated their fourth anniversary on Friday evening last in the Presbyterian church. The audience was very large. Appropriate addresses were delivered by T. Storke, of N. C., O.
O'Leary, of this place, and G. W.
Barton, Esq., of Lancaster.—The latter gentleman has not, by this address, lost any of that reputation for eloquence and sublimity of conception, which has preceded his arrival. We hope the Society will not fail to publish it. The exercises were enlivened with instrumental music, by the Band of the Society.

Gas Company: On Monday evening the stockholders in the Gettysburg Gas Company met in the Arbitration-room of the Court-house, and organized the company. The following gentlemen were elected officers:

President—Rev. Prof. Jacobs.
Managers—Rev. Prof. Muhlenburg, Henry Wantz, John Gilbert, James F. Fahnestock, Joel B. Danner, David McConaughy.

At a meeting of the Managers,
D. McConaughy, Esq., was appointed Secretary and Hon. J. B. Danner Treasurer.

Another Snow Storm: On Saturday, we had the greatest snow storm of the season, and during the night one of the hardest blows we remember. Yesterday was stormy and cold. This morning it is calm, and the mercury 7 1/2 degrees below zero! That will do for this season of the year. On Friday morning it was 2 degrees below zero.

Owing to the drift on the Railroad, the passenger train and the mails due on Saturday evening, did not reach this place until Sunday afternoon. The passengers remained in New Oxford.

The Blues paraded on the 23d, not at all intimidated by the weather—and the "People's Band" discussed excellent music on that occasion.
The latter gave several serenades in the evening for which we thank them. It was delightful music—rarely surpassed.

We are pleased to see that our former pupil, M. P. Rindlaub, has gone into partnership with our young legal friend, Nesbit Baugher, Esq., in the publication of the Warren Independent at Warren, Illinois. It is a very neat paper and appears to have excellent encouragement.

Property Sales: Mr. David Sterner has purchased the Gettysburg Foundry, (formerly Warren's), at $2,150.

Mr. Jacob Benner, Agent for Heirs of Peter Weikert, deceased, some time since sold at public sale the following properties: House and lot on High street, at $605, to the Misses Shillenn; barn and lot near Associate Reformed church, at $210, to Mr. Daniel K. Snyder, and house and lot back of Jail, at $175, to Mr. John Houck.

Messrs. Snyder & Benner have disposed of their Store to Messrs.
Henry and Jeremiah M. Rowe.

The very desirable property of Mr. Eli S. Myers, in Petersburg, has been purchased by the Lutheran Congregation in that place, for a parsonage, at $2,100.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was asked to come to St. Louis and deliver a lecture "eschewing all matter pertaining to politics and religion." Beecher declines the offer, saying that it is too late in his life for him to yield up his self respect and come under a censorship. He adds that he hopes it will not be long before the young men of St.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams
OUR LIVING PLANE

ALL of us live upon a plane—a plane upon which we have placed ourselves. When we allow ourselves to fall below this plane, we know it. When we lift ourselves above it, we know it.

If we keep our mind active and alert, clean and high in its aspirations, we know that we are forever building for a higher plane of living. It is not intellect alone which enables us to reach a higher plane, but the quality of thoughts which we think, the ideals which we adopt and serve, and the purposes which we breed within our hearts.

Character is higher than mere intellect. We rise upon its solid rounds, day by day, to a higher plane.

Out of the nature from which we were born do we emerge and gather the character which we are. And from every evidence of beauty and grandeur with which we are endowed at birth, do we acquire the eternal urge to be somebody better, abler and more influential.

Each of us is born a "unique." What a pity that nearly every human being is deprived of the privilege of developing according to his nature and according to the true laws of life. The world about the bird that is pushed from its nest educates it. Who are the powerful and resourceful of the earth? Those who early became most dependent upon themselves.

Long ago the poet expressed the idea that we build the ladder by which we climb! And each round lifts us to a higher plane of vision and of understanding.

The more we read of the ideas and achievements of others, and the more we associate with those of a higher mental plane than ourselves, the stronger do we become and the greater is our desire to rise to a higher plane.

The higher the plane of living which we adopt, the cleaner cut is our view of all about us. The other day when I looked out upon the city about me from the penthouse of my friend, I saw a great spectacle—but when I looked at the same city from the top of a 40-story building, I saw something that amazed me and which stimulated my mind.
Mere roofs were lost sight of—and I looked into the hearts of a teen-ing nest of humanity. I could almost hear its heart beats!

On the high plane we make corrections of thought. We regulate our lives anew.

"See my new dress?"—Isn't it pre-thing but serve as a trim, and they can be just as bright as a little girl likes them, so as to accentuate the brand new yoke line which Marian Martin designed especially for this new season. It sweeps from shoulders to bodice center, then dashes off to outline the inverted pleat at the skirt. Little gathers where the

INDIANA LEGISLATURE KILLS NEW STATE PLAN

Indianapolis, Feb. 25 (AP).—The bill to permit Lake county to withdraw from Indiana and become the forty-ninth state in the union was killed Thursday by the Indiana house of representatives.

The bill, introduced this week, would have given Lake county authority to petition congress for permission to enter the union as a separate state. Lake county includes the industrial cities of Gary, Hammond, Whiting and East Chicago and the county seat is Crown Point, the city which became famous when John Dillinger, slain gangster, fled from its "escape-proof" jail.

THE STRANGER WHO MUST HAVE DIED

A stranger several weeks ago By chance encountered me. He told a sorry tale of woe. I listened to his plea.

He'd walked the streets in search of aid;

He'd called on friends in town,

And told them all his need, but they'd

Politely turned him down.

A stranger, I, a stranger he,

And yet I loaned him "five."

Which he declared he'd send to me

"If he got home alive."

And since the time has passed when he Was sure that loan he'd pay,

I sit and wonder can it be

He died upon the way?

When next a stranger seeks me out

Sad-faced and teary-eyed,

I think I'll tell him all about

The chap who must have died.

I'll wish him luck upon his way

But still my "fives" I'll hoard.

"One dead man on my hands," I'll say,

"Is all I can afford!"

Frank Cumbee, 82, famous hunter of the Hell Hole swamp section of South Carolina, claims he has killed 416 deer during his life.

PROBE GRACE KIDNAP PLOT

Federal Agents Investigate Plot to Abduct Bethlehem Steel President.

Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 25 (AP).—The federal government's entrance into investigation of a kidnap plot against Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, was reported Sunday night by Mayor Robert Pfeiffer.

The mayor, named as one of two public officials to be abducted with the steel magnate, said several men are being sought in connection with the plot—apparently nipped by arrest of four men on robbery charges.

Local Police Aiding

Agents of the United States Justice department are working with state police and Bethlehem detectives, he said.

Details of the case were hidden behind a veil of police silence. Trooper Marshall Wilhelm disclosed that one of the quartet of alleged robbers revealed that Grace was to have been held for $250,000 ransom.

Other Intended Victims

The other intended victims, he said, were named as Mayor Robert Pfeiffer, of Bethlehem, and Nicholas Castelletti, a Northampton county courthouse attaché whom the would-be kidnappers are reputed to have held a grudge.

Wilhelm said the ringleader of the conspiracy is at large. He would not

CONSTANT ARISING?

A SIMPLE diuretic stimulant like Dr. Pierce's A-nuric is often indicated and usually it is sufficient to relieve minor kidney irregularities. Read what Marcus B. Rabenold of 386 Hickory St., Allentown, Pa., says: "I was hardly able to work. I suffered from dizzy headaches and would see spots. From constant arising at night I was drowsy and became completely exhausted. All this misery was soon cleared up after I had taken Dr. Pierce's A-nuric Tablets a short time. It was certainly a blessing to be relieved." Sold by druggists.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of A-nuric, and write for free medical advice.

name him and also declined to say who among the four in custody disclosed the plan.

The four, held for a series of robberies, including two bank hold-ups, are Barlow Orlando, 29, and Angelo Bonmarito, 21, both of Detroit; Frank Repynck, 26, Bethlehem, and Louis Kutzura, of Hellertown.

Persons at the Grace home said the steel company executive was out of the city and that they know nothing of the plot.

Superior officers of the state police barracks in Reading declined to make any enlightening comment on the investigation they acknowledged is under way. Sgt. Reece Davis, in charge of the work, said a search is being made for another man.

Bethlehem police were equally reticent and refused to say whether the four men are in their custody or at the state police barracks.

After having worked together in a circus for 40 years, Victor F. Anderson, 70, and Elizabeth N. Pew, 73, have married. Each had taken two previous trips to the altar.

Oxford Changes Training Place

Oxford, Eng. (AP).—The Oxford crew is training on the Thames at Henley instead of here to get in shape for the rowing race with Cambridge university on April 6.

This broken tradition is part of the program to break Cambridge's 11-year winning streak. Oxford's last crew to see the bending backs of Cambridge at the finish line was stroked by W. P. Mellen from New York.

"The reason we are training here," explained Michael Mosley, president of the Boat club, "is that the river at Oxford is so bad. The bank collects everything that comes down the river and the water is dead. A crew wants lively water."

BILBO HAS BLACK EYE, LONG BANDAGED FINGER

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP).—Senator Bilbo (democrat, Mississippi) appeared in the senate Thursday with a "shiner" on his right eye and Senator Long (democrat, Louisiana) displayed a bandaged finger on his left hand, but they explained to inquiries there was no connection between the two.

Bilbo said he was in an automobile accident Wednesday night, while Long explained his finger was bandaged because of a "touch of athlete's foot."

The diminutive Mississippi senator said his car was struck by a taxicab and knocked onto the sidewalk.

YOUNGER GENERATION CARRIES ON

Father may be famous—his name may glitter in the bright lights along Broadway or his face may provide laughs for millions of movie fans—but daughter isn't doing so badly either. Several daughters of famous fathers and notable mothers of the stage and screen are reaching toward stardom of their own right—for example, Carol (above, left) and Dorothy (lower left), daughters of Fred Stone; Ethel Barrymore Colt (above, right), daughter of Ethel Barrymore; and Mary Rogers (lower right), daughter of the inimitable Will, of lasso-throwing, gum-chewing fame. New Italian Plane Expected To Have Range of 7,500 Miles

Rome, Feb. 25 (AP).—A strange "Flying Fish" was tested out in secret Sunday in the hope of adding a long-distance flight record to the speed and altitude marks already set up by the National Aviation corps.

The "Flying Fish" or P. 10, as it is known in official circles, is said to look like a huge letter "M" against the sky. Its wings slant forward and back under the fuselage like the feelers of some giant insect.

May Try For Record Next Month. Official circles indicated the ship probably will attempt a distance record late in March or early in April.

Although it is a land plane with landing wheels, its wings give the big ship stabilized floating capacity and make it as safe for sea landing as a hydroplane or seaplane, say air officials who have seen it.

Powered by three "Plaggio" A-1 motors with double compressors, the P. 16 is credited by its engineers with a speed of 250 miles an hour and a range of 7,500 miles. They claim it also has stratospheric properties and can cruise comfortably at heights greater than 30,000 feet.

Balbo's Aide May Be Pilot

It is hoped that Major Attilio Bisce, a key pilot in Marshal Italo Balbo's transatlantic flights, and Renato Donati, holder of the world's altitude record, will man the ship in an attempt to beat the world's distance flight record now held by Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi, of France.

If they do, it is believed they will attempt to fly from Rome to the Straits of Magellan via Buenos Aires. This would be several thousand miles longer than the Frenchmen's distance record.

SEES ADULT EDUCATION

Buffalo, N. Y. (AP).—Dr. John H. Finley, educator and editor, believes the day will come when every man and woman in the land will be reached through adult education programs as the schools now reach the children.

MOUNT TAKES LEAGUE LEAD

Emmitsburg Dribblers Assured of Tie in Loop by Defeating Loyola.

Blazing into action as the second half began, Mount St. Mary's swept Loyola into route and won their important basketball game Saturday night at Evergreen. Some 1,500 fans watched Mount St. Mary's gain the leadership of the Maryland Collegiate league thereby and assure at least a tie for top honors.

Until that second-half offensive, led by Joe Sagadelli, Mount St. Mary's had looked no better than ordinary. Loyola had plugged away tenaciously in the first half to open a five-point lead, 18 to 13, at half time. But when the Mountaineers called upon a reserve of speed and accuracy in the second session, Loyola had nothing left with which to match the invaders. The Greyhounds were outclassed.

Tie May Result

In consequence, either Loyola or Washington may tie Mount St. Mary's for the league lead. Each has two games remaining, one with each other. In addition, Washington will visit Western Maryland and Loyola will visit St. John's. A defeat means elimination.

For the major part of the first period Saturday night the teams matched goal for goal. Neither gained more than four points advantage until at the very end of the half Loyola tallied three times in quick succession to gain its half-time advantage. Tom Carney was the leader of the Greyhounds, with three baskets, and Sagadelli and Bob Leahy shared honors for the Mounts with two apiece.

The second half was a sad time for Loyola. Within the first five minutes Mount St. Mary's caught up and passed the Evergreen team. With ten points in favor of the invaders, and the taller, heavier Mountaineers were widening the gap all the time. At one juncture the lead opened to 12 points, and to arrive at this score Mount St. Mary's outscored the home team in the period, 23 to 6.

Sagadelli's Eye Good

In accuracy Sagadelli's record stands as one of the best performances of the league this season. The tall forward netted seven field goals in thirteen shots and scored 15 points in all to be the leading scorer of the game.

74TH CONGRESS FILES 6,000 BILLS TO DATE

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP).—Maybe it's because all the 110 new house members have caught the urge for legislative authorship.

Anyway, there have been more than 6,000 bills introduced in the little more than a month and a half this session so far, and only 6,140 were dropped in the entire first session of the last congress.

HAPPINESS
a Habit

Wouldn't you like to step up the amount of enjoyment you get from life? The knack of keeping fit is largely a matter of regular habits. Your happiness may be hampered by common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in your meals.

Did you know that your grocer has a natural cereal food which corrects this condition? Kellogg's All-Brax, eaten regularly, supplies generous "bulk." Also vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in All-Brax is gentle and safe for normal individuals. More effective than the "bulk" in leafy vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Isn't this natural food much better than taking patent medicines? Serve it as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Get Kellogg's All-Brax at your grocer's. It contains much more "bulk" than portulaca products.
